WORK HISTORY

2007 to the present: Freelance editor and writer, specializing in science. Subjects have included natural resources management, civil engineering, evolutionary biology, music, economics, and quantum mechanics.

Services for individual authors have ranged from copyediting to line and developmental editing. Client organizations have included:

- University of California Press (Oakland, CA)—copyeditor for 20 trade books and two peer-reviewed journals
- Taylor & Francis Group (Abingdon, Oxford, UK)—copyeditor for eight peer-reviewed journals
- Executive College Press (Pismo Beach, CA)—developmental and line editor for trade books
- Solar Energy Industries Association (Washington, DC)—editor and writer

2003 to 2007: Information architect and content specialist, NavigationArts, McLean, Virginia. Clients included American Red Cross, Discovery Education, Marriott International, Pepco Holdings, Sallie Mae, and the US Department of State.

- Wrote and edited site copy, specifications, documentation, and tutorials.
- Coordinated content development (that is, I begged authors for their copy, and then wrote it for them)
- Defined and documented content governance guidelines for CMS-based sites
- Designed information architecture and interaction models for large-scale web sites

1995 to 2003: Web generalist. Contract and staff work for Internet companies and consultancies including USWeb, marchFIRST, and Sapient.

- Designed, implemented (HTML and CSS), and documented dozens of websites from conception through launch. Clients included America Online, Intel, Netflix, Nextel, Pottery Barn, Select Comfort (now called Sleep Number), and Williams-Sonoma.
