WORK HISTORY

2007 to the present: Freelance editor and writer. Subjects have included natural resources management, civil engineering, evolutionary biology, music, economics, and quantum mechanics. Services have ranged from copyediting to line and developmental editing. Client organizations have included:

- University of California Press (Oakland, CA)—copyeditor for 20 trade books and two journals
- Taylor & Francis Group (Abingdon, Oxford, UK)—copyeditor for several journals
- American Society of Civil Engineers (Reston, VA)—copyeditor for many trade books and technical standards
- Cambridge University Press (New York, NY)—copyeditor for the journal International Organization

2003 to 2007: Information architect and content specialist, NavigationArts, McLean, Virginia. Clients included American Red Cross, Discovery Education, Marriott International, Pepco Holdings, Sallie Mae, and the US Department of State.

- Designed information architecture and interaction models for large-scale web sites
- Defined and documented content governance guidelines for CMS-based sites
- Wrote and edited site copy, specifications, documentation, and tutorials
- Coordinated content development (that is, I begged authors for their copy, and then wrote it for them)

1995 to 2003: Web generalist. Contract and staff work for Internet companies and consultancies including USWeb, marchFIRST, and Sapient.

- Designed, implemented (HTML and CSS), and documented dozens of websites from conception through launch. Clients included America Online, Intel, Netflix, Nextel, Pottery Barn, Select Comfort (now called Sleep Number), and Williams-Sonoma
